The "Foot And Mouth" Disease

The outbreak of the "foot and mouth" disease among the live stock has almost entirely paralyzed the great cattle and hog markets of the land and has, as a consequence, brought on an era of decided inactivity in a great many lines of commercial business.

When a disaster like the outbreak of a contagious malady among live stock necessitating the establishment of a rigid quarantine operating against all live stock, and effecting ever section, either directly or indirectly, through the cutting off of market places, every line of business activity must perceptibly slow up.

Cattle and hogs were bringing phenominally high prices in the market and the prospect for an unusually large profit was particularly bright.

Never was the live stock business more alluring than it was Grow fainter and fainter—the wonbefore the outbreak of this unusual disease.

The number of people who purchased live stock to feed and fatten for market was more than ordinarily large this year. Many farmers, although the price offered for farm products was high determined to buy cattle and hogs and feed the corn out rather than sell it on the market. Consequently the purchases of cattle were very heavy and the demand for money unusually brisk.

The inability of the stock raiser to ship his fat cattle to market and collect the money they are worth, has resulted in tying up great sums of money in cattle which should have gone to market. The money markets in the agricultural sections are, therefore, feeling keenly the results of the paralysis in the live stock market. It hits the money loaners directly, and through them indirectly effects all other users of money in the commercial world.

The national and state governments have been prompt to act and have taken hold of the situation with a firm hand.

Everything known to science is being done to stop the spread of the disease and stamp it out entirely. Owing to the particularly contagious nature of the disease, the greatest caution and care should be exercised. Every stock raiser should be careful to take no chances. He should assist the authorities in every way possible in the herculean task of stamping out the disease.

The trouble is widespread, scarcely a section of the nation has escaped and it will require a nation-wide movement to stamp it out. Where it becomes necessary to kill cattle to avoid the danger of spreading the disease, the government reimburses the owners for live stock sacrificed so there is no excuse for lack of co-operation by individuals with the authorities.

The situation demands concert of action and decisive action too. It can be gotten under control if all will help. To withhold co-operation from the authorities means only more delays, more labor and a longer period of business depression.

It is unfortunate indeed, that this unexpected trouble has come upon us but the only way to deal with it is to accept the situation and join in the movement for permanent relief. If every one will do his part the task of the authorities will soon be concluded and the gates of the great live stock markets of this country will again swing open and the owners of fat cattle be afforded an opportunity to trade them for money, pay off the banker and loosen up the money to the benefit of all lines of business.

Plea For Principles as Against Personal Abuse In Elections

By CHARLEMAGNE TOWER, Author and Diplomat

THE time was when questions were discussed in political campaigns by men who had made a conscientious study of the principles which lie at the foundation of government. CANDIDATES CAME BE-FORE THE VOTERS WITH ARGUMENTS INTENDED TO IM-PROVE CONDITIONS or to extend prosperity or benefit the people of the nation by their endeavors both in the party organizations which they represented and in the halls of the legislature.

THOSE WERE MEN WHO WERE STATESMEN ENOUGH TO OFFER SOMETHING AND TO MAKE AT LEAST SOME CLAIM OF REASON FOR THEIR DEMAND THAT ONE POLITICAL PARTY SHOULD BE PUT OUT OF POWER AND ANOTHER PUT IN. THEY GAVE THE PEOPLE SOME. THING TO THINK ABOUT, AT ALL EVENTS, THAT WAS WORTH

WHILE. But the strange peculiarity of recent campaigns is that we listen to scarcely anything nowadays but the abuse which some of the gentlemen engaged in it employ in their public speeches. It would almost seem as if they thought that an audience at a political meeting could find no GREATER DELIGHT THAN TO SEE ONE PROMINENT CITI-ZEN OF THE COMMONWEALTH OR ANOTHER STRIPPED OF HIS CHARACTER as a man and turned toward hatred or ridicule. 12 ... 2:50 p. m.d 15 . . . 7:00 p. m.d Ninth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. Perhaps they do think so, but I do not believe that they are right.

WEAKENS HIS FORCES IN WEST

Sweep Westward of Grand Duke Nicholas' Main Armies Pronounced One of the Greatest Achievements of the War-Other Wings of Czar's Forces Moving Less Rapidly but Equally Irresistible.

London, Nov. 10 .- It was announced in Petrograd that Germany is moving But baffled the eye as it dwelt on troops from Belgium and France to the fronts of East Prussia, Posen and The light of the hill, and the wave Silesia. The kaiser has been compelled to weaken his force in the west to defend the richest provinces of the German empire and to close in the face of the Russians the opening gateway to Berlin.

The succession of victories gained by Russia in East Prussia, West Poland and Galicia by the rapid sweep westward of Grand Duke Nicholas' main armies is the greatest achievement so far by Germany's antagonists. Military critics pronounce it a miracle of warfare, com arable to the greatest operations of modern times.

The Russian commander-in-chief has amazed the world by the speed and precision with which he has advanced his masses over a country practically without railroads and devoid of a highroad worthy of the name. Eighteen days ago the Russian armies stood at the river Vistula, from Warsaw to Ivangorod, and were just gathering momentum for a pursuit of the beaten German armies. In those eighteen days the grand duke has driven them more than 150 miles, so that advance guards occupy strategical positions over the frontier of Posen and Silesia. This applies to the operations of Russia's central army, whose primary object is to seize Posen and Breslau. To the north, in East Prussia, and to the south, along the upper Vistula toward Cracow, the advances have been less rapid but equally irresistible.

A turning movement by Russian cavalry at the river Warthe, south of Kolo, and about forty miles from the border, prevented the Germans from standing along the Warthe be cause the Russians got there first, and, according to the official and un-Lower Michigan-Partly cloudy official statements, the whole line of defense went to pieces.

The Russian advance guards are now fighting on both the East Prussian and Posen borders, and it is believed that the Germans have given up their first plan of offering resistance to the Russian advance on the positions which they had prepared along the Warthe river.

According to the German report the Russians have suffered a reverse on the East Prussian frontier, where they lost 4,000 men and some machine guns, but of the fighting elsewhere in this region Berlin says

The "Foot And Mouth" Disease

The outbreak of the "foot and mouth" disease among the live stock has almost entirely paralyzed the great cattle and hog markets of the land and has, as a consequence, brought on an era of decided inactivity in a great many lines of commercial business.

When a disaster like the outbreak of a contagious malady among live stock necessitating the establishment of a rigid quarantine operating against all live stock, and effecting ever section, either directly or indirectly, through the cutting off of market places, every line of business activity must perceptibly slow up.

Cattle and hogs were bringing phenominally high prices in the market and the prospect for an unusually large profit was particularly bright.

Never was the live stock business more alluring than it was Grow fainter and fainter—the wonbefore the outbreak of this unusual disease.

The number of people who purchased live stock to feed and fatten for market was more than ordinarily large this year. Unobserved in their change, like the Many farmers, although the price offered for farm products was high determined to buy cattle and hogs and feed the corn The rainbows of heaven were bent in land and Galicia by the rapid sweep out rather than sell it on the market. Consequently the purchases of cattle were very heavy and the demand for money unusually brisk.

The inability of the stock raiser to ship his fat cattle to market and collect the money they are worth, has resulted in A moment and all was enveloped in tying up great sums of money in cattle which should have gone to market. The money markets in the agricultural sections are, therefore, feeling keenly the results of the paralysis They come but to blaze, and they in the live stock market. It hits the money loaners directly, and through them indirectly effects all other users of money in Their gossamer wings are too thin to the commercial world.

The national and state governments have been prompt to act and have taken hold of the situation with a firm hand.

Everything known to science is being done to stop the spread of the disease and stamp it out entirely. Owing to the particularly contagious nature of the disease, the greatest caution and care should be exercised. Every stock raiser should be careful to take no chances. He should assist the authorities in every way possible in the herculean task of stamping out the

The trouble is widespread, scarcely a section of the nation) has escaped and it will require a nation-wide movement to stamp it out.

Where it becomes necessary to kill cattle to avoid the danger of spreading the disease, the government reimburses the owners for live stock sacrificed so there is no excuse for lack Tuesday and Wednesday; warmer of co-operation by individuals with the authorities.

The situation demands concert of action and decisive action too. It can be gotten under control if all will help. To withhold co-operation from the authorities means only more delays, more labor and a longer period of business depression.

It is unfortunate indeed, that this unexpected trouble has come upon us but the only way to deal with it is to accept the situation and join in the movement for permanent relief.

If every one will do his part the task of the authorities will soon be concluded and the gates of the great live stock markets of this country will again swing open and the owners of fat cattle be afforded an opportunity to trade them for money, pay off the banker and loosen up the money to the benefit of all lines of business.

Plea For Principles as Against Personal Abuse In Elections

By CHARLEMAGNE TOWER, Author and Diplomat

THE time was when questions were discussed in political campaigns by men who had made a conscientious study of the principles which lie at the foundation of government. CANDIDATES CAME BE-

FORE THE VOTERS WITH ARGUMENTS INTENDED TO IM-PROVE CONDITIONS or to extend prosperity or benefit the people of the nation by their endeavors both in the party organizations which they represented and in the halls of the legislature. THOSE WERE MEN WHO WERE STATESMEN ENOUGH TO OFFER

SOMETHING AND TO MAKE AT LEAST SOME CLAIM OF REASON FOR THEIR DEMAND THAT ONE POLITICAL PARTY SHOULD BE PUT OUT OF POWER AND ANOTHER PUT IN. THEY GAVE THE PEOPLE SOME. THING TO THINK ABOUT, AT ALL EVENTS, THAT WAS WORTH WHILE.

But the strange peculiarity of recent campaigns is that we listen to scarcely anything nowadays but the abuse which some of the gentlemen engaged in it employ in their public speeches. It would almost seem as if they thought that an audience at a political meeting could find no GREATER DELIGHT THAN TO SEE ONE PROMINENT CITI-GREATER DELIGHT THAN TO SEE ONE PROMINENT CITI- No. Springfield | No. Greenfield | No. Gree OF HIS CHARACTER as a man and turned toward hatred or ridicule. 12 2:50 p. m.d | 15 . . . 7:00 p. m.d | Ninth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio. The way M. Ysaye, the great violinist, became the owner of a Guarnerius violin dated 1742 was thus quaintly told by himself:

"The Guarnerius was bought in Paris by a pupil of mine, a charming young woman. I envied her the violin, and fate gave it to me. I teach this pupil. and by and by I meet her sister, a most lovely young woman, with whom I fall in love straightway and marry. Soon I go to my sister-in-law, who was my pupil, and say to her:

"'It is time you stop fooling with a violin. You will never learn how to play it.' I take the liberty of a big brother, but she do not like it for long time. At last she succumb to my experience and wisdom, and she stops playing. Then I say grandiloquently:

"'I will take the Guarnerius, 1742." I take it, and that is how the violing came into the possession of Ysaye."

Winning a Violin.

The way M. Ysaye, the great violinist, became the owner of a Guarnerius violin dated 1742 was thus quaintly told by himself:

"The Guarnerius was bought in Paris by a pupil of mine, a charming young woman. I envied her the violin, and fate gave it to me. I teach this pupil, and by and by I meet her sister, a most lovely young woman, with whom I fall in love straightway and marry. Soon I go to my sister-in-law, who was my pupil, and say to her:

"'It is time you stop fooling with a violin. You will never learn how to play it.' I take the liberty of a big brother, but she do not like it for long time. At last she succumb to my experience and wisdom, and she stops playing. Then I say grandiloquently:

"'I will take the Guarnerius, 1742." I take it, and that is how the violin came into the possession of Ysaye."

Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N.Y. I have been at work among the sick and poor for nearly eighteen years, and whenever I have used Vinol for rundown, weak or emaciated patients, they have been visibly benefited by it. One patient, a young woman, was so weak and ill she could hardly creep to my door for aid, and was leaning on a friend's arm. Dividing 6 by 2 equals 3, and multiplying 20 by 2 the first column which are even and with it their parallels in the second column-12 and 6 will go out, leaving the last two parallel results. Ignoring the first column and adding the numbers in the second, the answer will be the result of 40 and 80, or 120.

The questions are: Who ever worked it out? How did he start?

Now, why is it that the even numbers must be eliminated on the right side when they do not count at all in the addition?

It is plain to be seen that all the numbers in the second column will be even, but by what freak of calculation are those corresponding to the even numbers in the first column of no consequence when the correct sum is to be obtained?

Where no even number results in the first column, as in 15 x 13, there is no complication; 15 and 13 in the process N. In the sum 16 x 4, 16 divides itself into 8, 4, 2 and 1 successively, while 4 becomes 8, 16, 32 and case the addition of the second column will be 64

Despite the puzzling nature of this formula, there is some mathematical principle by which it can be explained. There is some rule awaiting the fertile minds of the workers by which this "stumper" can be demonstrated to be simplicity itself.

Another quizzer: Why must fractions be discarded? How is it that the result will be true when several units are cast aside? For example, consider the number 47. Dividing by 2 the result will be 23. One whole unit is thrown away. Twenty-three becomes by the same process 11, another unit discarded. Eleven resolves itself into b, making the third unit passed by. The next step results in 2 and then 1, but why is it that these three units count for nothing?

The mere fact that the explanation South America is to be found a very is near, that the whole thing is simple if the key can be found, is one that cannot help but draw attention to this novel means of adding.-Philadelphia North American.

the Trick of Breathing Flames and Sparks From the Mouth.

The first known fire breather was a Eyrian slave named Eunus, a leader in the Servile war in Sicily, 130 B. C. He pretended to have immediate communication with the gods. When desirous of inspiring his followers with courage he breathed flames and sparks from his mouth. In order to accomplish this feat Eunus pierced a nutshell at both ends.

and, having filled it with some burning substance, he put it in his mouth and breathed through it. The same trick is performed today in a more approved manner. The performer rolls some flax or hemp into a ball about the size of a walnut, which he lets burn until it is nearly consumed. Then he rolls around it more flax while it is still burning. By this means the fire is retained in the ball for a long time. He slips this ball into his mouth unperceived and breathes through it. His breath revives the fire, and he sustains no injury so long as he inhales only through his nostrils

Various theories have been advanced to account for other feats of this sort performed by the ancients. An old shorten our ordeal was the holding of a redhot iron by the accused, who was not burned living and our old age convictions. Dr. if he were innocent. Probably some protective paste was used on the hands. The peculiar property of mineral salts. such as alum, in protecting articles of dress from fire has long been known. An old Milanese devised a costume consisting of a cloth covering for the body which had been steeped in alum. A metallic dress of wire gauze was added to this, and thus protected a man might walk on hot iron.

Submarine Mines.

Wet guncotton in submarine mines is, of course, a very potent explosive, but in many respects it is quite outclassed by the compound used in German mines and known as trinitrotoluene, but abbreviated to "T. N. T." in Great Britain and to "trotyl" in Germany. A shell, torpedo or mine loaded with

"T. N. T." (which requires to be detonated by means of mercury fulminate) bursts with great violence into large fragments, whereas if loaded with picric acid the splinters are very small and cannot therefore do as much damage. Although wet guncotton is more powerful if exploded in close proximity to the target, the effect of "T. N. T." is much greater when the explosion takes place some distance away .-London Telegraph.

TRAINING FOR LONGEVITY.

The Mental Attitude Is as Important as Bodily Vigor.

A few years ago a young man "died of old age' in a New York hospital. After an autopsy the surgeons said that while the youth was in reality only twenty-three years old he was internally eighty.

It is the aged mind that frequently makes the body old. "Keep growing or die" is nature's motto, a motto written all over everything in the universe. There must be a constant activity in the mind that would not age, and the body is but the expression of the mind.

There is no doubt that as a race we through our false thinking, our bad Metchnikoff of the Pasteur institute in Paris says that men should live at least 120 years. Yet it is only in rare instance today that a man reaches even the century mark.

Making a business of prolonging life and still retaining as much as possible of its vigor, freshness and buoyancy ought to be a prime object, especially after one has passed fifty. While proper care of the body is absolutely essential for the attainment of this object, the mental influence far transcends all others. The attitude of the mind has everything to do with hastening or retarding the degenerative processes incident to one's declining years. It is an established fact that the body follows the thought, is shaped by the mental convictions, emotions, moods.-Orison Swett Marden in Nautilus.

FIRE EATERS.

the Trick of Breathing Flames and Sparks From the Mouth.

The first known fire breather was a Cyrian slave named Eunus, a leader in the Servile war in Sicily, 130 B. C. He pretended to have immediate communication with the gods. When desirous of inspiring his followers with courage he breathed flames and sparks from his mouth.

In order to accomplish this feat Eunus pierced a nutshell at both ends and, having filled it with some burning substance, he put it in his mouth and breathed through it. The same trick is performed today in a more approved manner. The performer rolls some flax or bemp into a ball about the size of a walnut, which he lets burn until it is nearly consumed. Then he rolls around it more flax while it is still burning. By this means the fire is retained in the ball for a long time. He slips this ball into his mouth unperceived and breathes through it. His breath revives the fire, and he sustains no injury so long as be inhales only through his nostrils.

to account for other feats of this sort 24 and 96 to be added-this becomes performed by the ancients. An old ordeal was the holding of a redhot iron by the accused, who was not burned if he were innocent. Probably some protective paste was used on the hands. The peculiar property of mineral salts, such as alum, in protecting articles of dress from fire has long been known. An old Milanese devised a costume consisting of a cloth covering for the body which had been steeped in alum. A metallic dress of wire gauze was added to this, and thus protected a man might walk on hot fron.

Submarine Mines.

Wet guncotton in submarine mines is, of course, a very potent explosive, but in many respects it is quite outclassed by the compound used in German mines and known as trinitrotoluene, but abbreviated to "T. N. T." in Great Britain and to "trotyl" in Germany. A shell, torpedo or mine loaded with

"T. N. T." (which requires to be detonated by means of mercury fulminates bursts with great violence into large fragments, whereas if loaded with picric acid the splinters are very small and cannot therefore do as much damage. Although wet guncotton is more powerful if exploded in close proximity to the target, the effect of "T. N. is much greater when the explosion takes place some distance away .-London Telegraph.

TRAINING FOR LONGEVITY.

The Mental Attitude Is as Important as Bodily Vigor.

A few years ago a young man "died of old age' in a New York hospital. After an autopsy the surgeons said that while the youth was in reality only twenty-three years old be was internal-

It is the aged mind that frequently makes the body old. "Keep growing or die" is nature's motto, a motto written all over everything in the universe. There must be a constant activity in the mind that would not age, and the shorten our lives very materially through our false thinking, our bad living and our old age convictions. Dr. Metchnikoff of the Pasteur institute in Paris says that men should live at least 120 years. Yet it is only in rare instance today that a man reaches even the century mark.

Making a business of prolonging life and still retaining as much as possible of its vigor, freshness and buoyancy ought to be a prime object, especially after one has passed fifty. While proper care of the body is absolutely essential for the attainment of this object. the mental influence far transcends all others. The attitude of the mind has everything to do with hastening or retarding the degenerative processes incident to one's declining years. It is an established fact that the body follows the thought, is shaped by the mental convictions, emotions, moods.-Orison Swett Marden in Nautilus.
